A Mad World

If I go forth and shoot a guy whose cows have spoiled my field of rye, to prison I must wend; they will not let me be at large; they'll try me on a murder charge, and hang me in the end. No sympathy shall I receive; no mourner at my grave will grieve, or weep some briny juice; they'll say, "He is a callous brute, who would a fellow-mortal shoot, for such a slim excuse!" But if my rusty sword I swing, and whoop for some bewhiskered king, I can't commit a crime; the more I butcher, maim and slay, the more the folks around will say, "His actions are sublime!" I do not need a thin excuse to cook the other fellow's goose; I shoot him down on sight; I plug some white-faced, beardless lad, I rob some children of their dad, and all I do is right. It's murder if you guard your own; but if you guard a threatened throne, it loyalty becomes; so when you go a gent to wing, be sure to holler for a king, and beat a few bass drums.

DEAD DUE TO FALL IN MAY Body of Bush Brill Recovered by

and Traveler-Funeral Probably Saturday Morning.

MISS ELIZABETH V. BROWN.

Miss Elizabeth V. Brown, educator, author and clubwoman, for more than ten years director of primary instruc tion in the local public schools, died last night at her home, 1357 Euclid street northwest. Death was due to a nervous breakdown following a fall sustained in May.

Time for funeral services have not beer decided upon but probably will be held Saturday, with interment at Congressional cemetery.

The death of Miss Brown came as shock to hundreds of friends throughout the city, with whom she had been associated in educational, social and religious work in a manner which made her a beloved leader in all activlties

Miss Brown was the daughter of the late George H. Brown, who was for thirty-nine years landscape gardener of the District. She received her edugraduating from both high and normal shools and later received the degree of A.B. from the George Washington University.

School Career.

Soon after her graduation she was ppointed method and practice teacher n the Normal School As director of primary instruction for more than ten years Miss Brown had charge of the work of the first four grades, during which time she brought the primary schools up to the highest standard of efficiency. She held her position during the terms of Superintendents Stuart, Chancellor, Davidson and Thurston.

Miss Brown had been very popular as a lecturer on education and its related problems, and had been heard in many of the leading cities in the south and middle west. Extensive travels through the various countries of Europe as well as in the United States and Canada gave Miss Brown a breadth of view which was reflected in her lectures and in her educational

Author of Children's Books.

As the author of a number of books or children Miss Brown won wide recognition. Among her earlier works are Stories of Woods and Fields," "Stories of Childhood and Nature" and "When the World Was Young." Later she was co-author of the "Home Readers." Miss Brown was recently unanimousv elected to succeed herself as president of the College Women's Club, an organization of 400 women, representing eighty-three colleges and univer-sities. During Miss Brown's term the club reached its banner year, under-taking under her leadership new and successful enterprises.

She was the organizer and first president of the Teachers' Branch of the Women's Department of the National ivic Federation.
Miss Brown was an active member and earnest worker in the Audubon Society, the Y. W. C. A., the League of American Pen Women, the Twentieth Century Club, the Columbian Women and the Monday Evening Club. Early in life Miss Brown identified herself with the Presbyterian Church. She was a member of the New York erward assistant superintendent of the Sunday school of that church Besides her mother, a sister. Mrs. Daniel Webster Prentiss, and two brothers, Capt. Orville G. Brown, U. S. ., and George H. Brown, are living.

Companion on Fishing Trip.

Bush Brill, thirty-four years old, an expert swimmer, was drowned in the river near the Army War College yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock. He Author of Children's Books, Lecturer had been fishing during the afternoon and just before time to leave the river a member of the party suggested a swim, and it was while Brill was returning to the boat he disappeared be neath the surface of the water. Rufus Brill, a brother, was a membe of the party. The police were told that other members of the party had reached the boat and that Bush Brill was on his way to it, when he suddenly disappeared. His companions had no idea that anything was wrong, they said, expecting he would reappear near the boat. He failed to reappear, however,

Charles Hunt, a member of the party recovered the body, and Coroner Nevitt gave a certificate of accidental death. Brill, a former resident of West Virginia, was employed as an attendant at the Government Hospital for the Insane, and resided with his wife at 630 Milwaukee place, Congress Heights. His wife was formerly Miss Caroline Thompson. They were married about a

The arrival of the Ruth was not looked for until today, as the last advices received from the Rappahannock melon farms was to the effect that the pull ing of the melons would not be started until yesterday and that the first vesprobably would arrive here the

Capt. D. M. Faunce has just returned from a visit to the watermelon-grow-ing districts on the eastern shore of Maryland. He found an abundant crop of the fruit, but it was maturing slowly, on account of the unseasonably cool nights, and it will be after August 10 before the picking of the melons is started. Rust, due to damp and cold weather, has appeared in some of the melon patches on eastern shore and may decrease the number of melons that will be sent to the market here. The coming of good warm weather for several days would save the situation, it is said. Yesterday a big lighter was lying at 11th street wharf loading the oys-ter and clam shells that had accumulated in the past two months in order to clean up the 11th street wharf in preparation for the coming of the melon season. The shells will be taken to the Alexandria crushing plant and converted into lime for use in poultry vards. By the early part of the com ing week it is thought the melon sea-son will be on, and that melon-laden craft will be arriving here daily and

Cutter Apache Unable to Float the Robert Bratton, However

Another effort was made early in the week by the United States coast guard cutter Apache to float the schooner Robert Bratton, stranded near the pier at Chesapeake Beach, but it was unsuc cessful. The Bratton has worked deep into the sand, and a bar has formed outside her that adds to the difficulty of working her into deep water. It is be lieved the Bratton will end her days where she lies. Before going to the Brandon the Apache went to the aid of the schooner Ella Flaherty of Cape Charles, Vi which was ashore near Tangier, and danger of breaking up. Though the cutter could not get within a mile of the schooner, she succeeded by using kedge anchors and a light schooner in getting the Flaherty in water deep enough to float her. Later in the week the Apache went to the aid of the schooner Abbie H. Gheen, ashore near Sharps Island, Md., and continuing her good work pulled the Gheen into deep water and took her to Balti-more for repairs. The Apache in the course of a year will have more calls for aid from vessels in trouble on Chesapeake bay than has any vessel in the coast guard service, with the pos-sible exception of the cutter Acushnet, on the Woods Hole, Mass., station.

TEST FOR PROMOTION

Few Schools Depend on That System | Rhode Island Avenue Suburban Citi-Now, States Official of U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Few schools now rely entirely upon examinations as a test for promotion, declares W. S. Deffenbaugh, chief of the division of school administration of the United States bureau of educa tion, in his annual review of school conditions in the smaller cities.

"In some schools examinations are less than formerly.'

How pupils shall be classified so that they may advance through the grades without loss of time is a question that is continually presenting itself to thoughtful superintendents, according to Mr. Deffenbaugh, and some cities are undertaking special experiments in this field.
